

Janusz Szyrmer received his Ph.D. and M.A. from the University of Pennsylvania, USA, and M.A. from the Poznan School of Economics, Poland. His previous academic appointments were with Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass; the University of Pennsylvania and the Wharton School in Philadelphia, PA; the Central University of Venezuela in Caracas; Oxford University in Oxford, U.K.; the Polish Academy of Sciences in Warsaw, Poland; the Bulgarian Academy of Sciences in Sofia; the Kyiv-Mohyla Academy in Ukraine; and several other academic institutions. He has authored/co-authored twelve books and monographs and many research papers, most of which were on policy modeling and the economics of transition. Since 1985 he has undertaken analytical work and consulting in economic policy for: Booz-Allen Hamilton, DAI, KPMG/Barents/BearingPoint, the Millennium Challenge Corporation, PlanEcon, the Soros Foundation, The Services Group, Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates, World Resources Institute, and others. For the last ten years he has worked for several international aid projects, including the Harvard Ukraine Reform Project (Chief of Party), the Ukrainian-European Economic Policy and Legal Advice Center (Scientific Director), and the Kosovo Economic Reform Project (Chief Macroeconomist at the Ministry of Finance and Economy). He has also served as policy advisor to the governments of Mongolia, India, and Zambia. Currently he serves as Chief of Party for the USAID/PIP-Project (Public Investment Policy) in Baku, Azerbaijan.