

Alexander Chubrik graduated with an honors degree in economic theory in 2000 from the Belarusian State University. In 1999 he worked for the IPM-CASE Research Center, a Belarusian economic think-tank and member of the CASE Research Network. Between 2000 and 2004 he taught at the Belarusian State University and in 2009 at the European Humanities University in Lithuania. In 2007, Alexander Chubrik became Deputy Director of CASE Belarus in Poland; 2009 CASE Research Fellow and in December 2009 Resident Economic Advisor at the Ministry of Economic Development of Azerbaijan, within the project "Advisory Service for Macroeconomic Management and Institutional Reform" implemented by CASE. Research interests: economic growth, poverty and social inclusion, labor market, macroeconomic modeling, applied econometrics, transition economies development.